

THOMAS BUERGENTHAL

Professor Thomas Buergenthal holds the Lobingier Chair in International and Comparative Law at The National Law Center of The George Washington University, Washington, D.C. and is the Director of its International Rule of Law Institute. He also serves on the 18-member United Nations Rights Committee.

He was a judge, Vice President and President of the Inter-American Court of Human Rights (1979-1991); as well as judge, Vice President, and President of the Administrative Tribunal of the Inter-American Development Bank (1989-1994). In 1992-1993, he served on the three-member United Nations Truth Commission for El Salvador.

Buergenthal was the Dean of The American University School of Law, Washington, D.C. (1980-1985), and a professor of international law at various other universities, including the University of Texas (Austin), Emory University (Atlanta), and the State University of New York (Buffalo). He is the author of more than a dozen books and numerous articles on international law, human rights and comparative law subjects. He serves on the editorial boards of various professional journals including the American Journal of International Law, Revue Universelle des Droits de l'Homme, and Europäische Grundrechte Zeitschrift. Buergenthal has lectured at the Hague Academy of International Law and many universities in different parts of the world.

He was the President of the Costa Rica-based Inter-American Institute of Human Rights (1980-1992) and now serves as its Honorary President. He is an honorary Vice President of the American Society of International Law and a member, inter alia, of the Kuratorium of the Max Planck Institute for Public International Law (Heidelberg), the Council on Foreign Relations, and the American Law Institute.

Buergethal earned the following academic degrees; Bachelor of Arts, Bethany College, West Virginia; Doctor of Jurisprudence, New York University; Master of Laws and Doctor of Juridical Science; Harvard Law School. He was awarded honorary doctorates in law by Bethany College, the University of Heidelberg, Germany, and the Free University of Brussels (V.U.B.), Belgium. He is admitted to practice in the State of New York and the District of Columbia, as well as before the United States Supreme Court.